New AEC Head Faces Questions on His Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—John A. McCone, who faces a wide ranging inquiry into his views on atomic policy and his business connections before the Senate acts on his nomination to the Atomic Energy Commission.

President Eisenhower Friday appointed McCone, a Los Angeles business man, to succeed Lewis L. Strauss as an AEC member. Strauss is stepping out June 30 as chairman of the AEC.

Sens. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) and Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), members of the Senate-Atomic Energy Committee, said in separate interviews they understand McCone will be named chairman of the commission if his nomination is confirmed.

Anderson added, however, he does not expect McCone to have the same broad duties as Strauss, who also served as President Eisenhower's atomic adviser.

Strauss, a controversial figure, will become the President's special assistant in charge of promoting the atom-for-peace program after his current five year term expires at the end of this month.

Reaction was uniformly favorable among senators who will pass on McCone's nomination. But several senators said they want to explore McCone's views on atomic power, the halting of nuclear tests, the sharing of nuclear secrets with other countries, production of plutonium and other matters.

McCone, who was in Potsdam, N.Y., to receive an honorary degree Sunday from Clarkson College, declined Friday night to discuss his views with newsmen. He said questions on basic atomic policy would have to be answered before senators considering his nomination.

McCone, who served as under-secretary of the Air Force in the Truman Administration, was listed by the White House as a Republican.

McCaskill Is Making Big Carnival Plans

Two headline attractions have been booked for the Country Carnival, which will be held at McCaskill Friday night, June 20, according to Ira Mosley, general chairman in charge for the McCaskill Rural Community Improvement club.

The first attraction will be a radio quiz show and broadcast staged by the staff of Hope's radio station, KXAR, in cooperation with the merchants and business firms of Hope. Numerous prizes will be given those in attendance at the carnival who participate on the program. Details will be announced later, said Mr. Mosley.

The second big event will be a match between two nationally known heavyweight wrestlers, Hempscheid county's own champion Barlo Hill, and Jack O'Brien, of Dallas, Texas, holder of the Southwest wrestling championship and other titles during his wrestling career.

Barlo Hill, who retired from professional wrestling 13 years ago to buy a large farm in the Redland township, told the U. S. Marine and U. S. Navy wrestling championships during World War II and later won the Canadian heavyweight title.

Hill, raised from the carnival will be used by the McCaskill RCI club to repair their community center, which was formerly the McCaskill school building.

Other committee chairman as named by President Arthur Winnie of the McCaskill RCI, are: Jess Tinsley, wrestling promoter; Mrs. Clold Blittick, arrangements for radio show; Loy Rodgers, ticket sales; Orville Wortham and John Denton, concessions; Mrs. Gordon Prescott and Mrs. A. G. Shuffield, food booth; Luther Seiser, building and grounds; J. R. Ferrieffield, electrical wiring; Leon Fessenden, popcorn; Mrs. Walter Seiser, decorations; Arthur Winnie, publicity; Herman Rhodes and Loy Rodgers, cold drinks; Gordon Prescott, chief carnival barker.

Washington Cemetery Reveals Real Age of the Old Town

By Mary Anita Lasater

The history of Washington, Ark., and its citizens dates farther back than many people realize.

A look at some of the headstones in an old cemetery in that town reveals that Washington had been populated by some who had even fought in the Revolutionary War.

Situated at the bottom of a pretty slope, the location of the cemetery is surrounded by woods in which pine trees predominate. Through devastation of nature and carelessness of man, the site had been allowed to become overgrown with weeds and brush.

However, last fall Ira Brooks of West Monroe, La., gave impetus to a program for cleaning off and preserving this historical site. Other interested parties including Albert Simms of Albuquerque, N. M., a former U. S. congressman from his state, soon joined the movement.

Members of the John Cain Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are working on this project as representatives of the Chickasaw District. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. J. Battle of Fulton, the planning and restoration is being accomplished by John V. Keck, who is giving gratuitously of his time and knowledge. It will be about two years before the cemetery will simply require routine upkeep.

Legend says that six or seven men who were soldiers in the Revolutionary War are buried there, but only three tombstones are thus designated. They are at the graves of John Holman, James Williams, and Eli Collins.

Since many of the mounds are unmarked or the marker has been damaged or destroyed, it is possible that more Revolutionary War veterans were laid to rest in Washington.

Even without the Medical statistics about human longevity, it is easy to see that the average adult lived to be only 45 or 50 years of age a century ago. Examination of the tombstones in this old cemetery bear out this fact.

They also show the elaborate way in which many tombs were marked. While marble sculptured in floral patterns or made to resemble scrolls with entire poems inscribed on them were often used.

One monument stands out for two reasons. First, it marks the Jennings lot, and Jennifer came to Washington from the North as he was not regarded very highly. ("Yankies" never were in those days down South.)

The second reason it stands out is a literal one. The monument is by far the tallest in the cemetery, rising to a height of eight feet. Even the vast growth of weeds and brush had not completely covered it last year, though everything else was temporarily lost to sight.

Well-known names are found on many of the tombstones in this old cemetery. Family names like Conway, Elver, Keyston, Green, and Block are noted in many of the stones. Dr. Isaac Newton Jones, father of Dan Jones who became one of Arkansas' governors, is also buried there, as are his wife and some of his children.

Probably the most famous figure in the history of Arkansas is Augustus H. Garland, governor, Confederate State Senator, United States Senator, and U. S. Attorney

New Labor Bill Will Deal With Union Abuses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said today a labor bill now ready for Senate action would be fully adequate to deal with union abuses.

Kennedy, chief author of the measure, told a reporter he is strongly hopeful the bill could get through the Senate without major amendment. He cited two factors:

1. Support of the bill by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.
2. The 12-1 vote by which the Senate Labor Committee approved the measure Friday.

The bill would, set up a union democracy code and would require full public accounting of union financial affairs. It also would modify or repeal parts of the Taft-Hartley law along lines sought by organized labor.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland of California said he would fight on the Senate floor for all of his proposed labor control amendments which are not in the bill.

The measure incorporates some of Knowland's proposals, including a requirement for secret ballots in union elections. But many of his most stringent ones are omitted.

The committee plans to send the bill to the floor next Tuesday, meeting a June 10 deadline previously set by Senate leaders.

If finally enacted, the bill would bring about the broadest changes in basic labor law since the Taft-Hartley Act was passed in 1947.

Major provisions of the bill would:

1. Require complete public reporting of union financial data, of conflict-of-interest transactions by union officers, and of spending by employers on improper anti-union activities. There would be criminal penalties for false reports.
2. Make a secret ballot mandatory for election of local union officers and for national union officers or delegates who elect them at conventions. National union officers would be limited to five-year terms and local officers to terms of four years. Election notices would have to be sent to all union members 15 days in advance of voting.

"The cemetery is owned by the city of Washington. It is touched by county road which has been recently improved, and the State Historical Commission has become interested in the restoration because of its great historical value."

Builds Yale Courses in Religion

By Carl F. Bissell

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — When the Rev. Sidney Lovett came to the Yale campus in 1942, there were exactly three students taking the undergraduate course in religion.

When he stepped down from the teaching chair in 1954 he had 300 students in his classes.

And now, on the eve of his retirement after 26 years as Yale chaplain, one out of every six undergraduates is taking a course in religion.

The reason for the upsurge, the Rev. Mr. Lovett believes, is that the student is finding out why it is he needs an invisible means of support.

"There is much more healthy curiosity about religion on the campus," he says. "The student asks much more fundamental questions about it."

"He is continually searching for the right answer and he is finding it because he has asked the right questions."

Faculty colleagues say the Rev. Mr. Lovett, known as "Uncle Sid" on campus, has done more than he'll admit to encourage the asking of the right questions.

And he seems to have supplied a lot of satisfying answers too, since nonsectarian and noncompulsory services at Yale's Battell Chapel are heavily attended.

The Rev. Mr. Lovett was ordained to the Presbyterian clergy nearly half a century ago and preached in Boston for 18 years before coming to Yale.

He has been an avowed enemy of what he defines as "arrogant egotism, unlovely and pompous exclusiveness and religious intolerance which he adds are not confined to any particular creed."

When he retires later this month, he will leave for Holy Kings to supervise the enlargement of New Asia College, a school built a few years ago with a $250,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

Armed with a $150,000 grant from Yale's China, he will oversee construction of a dining hall, kitchen, art center, and possibly an auditorium for New Asia's 200 students.

Pine Bluff Plans a New Hospital

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Construction of the 4½ million dollar Jefferson Hospital here is expected to be started this month by Dickmann-Pickens-Bond, a Little Rock firm.

The Jefferson Hospital Board yesterday awarded the general contract to the firm on a bid of $3,698,042, low among four bids received.

Almost one million dollars will be spent to equip the 250-bed hospital, Board Chairman Harlow Sanders said.

There Is Fear of Continued Inflation

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Fear of more inflation is rising today in spite of the industrial recession.

Some businessmen are calling another rise in basic prices inevitable even if the slump hangs around for awhile. Still more add these are particularly numerous in the stock market — think the business upturn, when it comes, will start off a fresh and perhaps vigorous inflation revival.

Here are some of the factors they see keeping the inflation issue alive today.

Wages of many workers are going up, even though their industries may have much idle production facilities. Some of these wage boosts are written into existing contracts and some are in process of negotiation.

Steel executives are saying the automatic wage boost July 1 calls for a price rise to meet it. Enough steel users believe a price hike is coming to have posted their orders this month to beat it and this has caused steel output to bounce back from its low point.

A wage hike of around 25 cents an hour is coming Aug. 1 in the aluminum industry. And some executives are now warning that this cannot be met without a price increase too. Here also there is a question of making a price hike stick.

Auto wage negotiations are stymied at the moment. But the companies have offered to extend the expired contracts for two more years. These have built in annual wage increases as well as cost of living pay boosts when the government index rises far enough. The auto union wants even more than this.

ROUND TRIPPER?—With the recovery of the nose cone of a Jupiter intermediate-range ballistic missile the United States has gone a long way in solving the re-entry problem. While construction details are secret, this picture, released by General Electric, shows a fully checked out and operational nose cone (arrow) being repacked in its carrier case at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The blunt front, or "shield," of the nose cone remains seated in the lower part of the case until the nose cone is ultimately mated with the missile. The nose is blunted to produce the high-drag-to-weight design. This would reduce speeds from 15,000 to perhaps 500 miles an hour and reduce 90 percent of the heat from friction with the atmosphere. A sharp nose cone burns up on re-entry like a meteor or like the spent Russian Sputniks 1 and 11.

Believes Infantry of Future Will Reveal Some Fantastic Ways of Battling the Enemy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The scene is a future war. The American infantry is attacking.

Suddenly one platoon breaks away from the advancing line and zooms rapidly forward like a swarm of angry bees.

They take one hill, two hills, three hills—as the startled enemy panics and flees.

Later the whole platoon is called before the beaming general who says: "There has never been an exploit to match this in the entire annals of warfare. It's fantastic. I am proud of you men, and I'm recommending every one of you for the Medal of Honor."

The members of the platoon look intensely at one another.

Finally an honest private blurts out: "Aw, hell, general we ain't no heroes. We just set our rear rocket motors in high—and could not stop. If we hadn't run out of fuel, we'd still be going."

This little fantasy could come true if a new portable rocket developed by an ex-Army technical sergeant works out. Strapped to the rear of a doughboy it holds promise of turning him into a combination racehorse and antelope.

He won first place in student research with his investigation of a phase of vitamin E deficiency.

Glen Dalrymple of Little Rock shared scholastic honors with Young, both graduated with "high honors."

Gordon Newton of Camden won the Senior Buchanan Key awarded to the student who demonstrates the best qualifications of a prospective physician.

Top honors in the school of pharmacy graduating class went to H. V. Maulding Jr. of Foreman. He compiled the highest grade average and was picked as the outstanding member of his class.

Today's honors day was the medical center's second.

Dr. Matt L. Ellis, professor of philosophy at Hendrix College in Conway, told the graduates there was a need for conscience along with competence in the health fields.

A professional man who meets his obligations in good conscience lends meaning to his professional skills, Ellis said.

The Hendrix professor was principal speaker.

"One thing you do have to admit," remarked a third. "It sure is a hell of a handy instrument for going AWOL in a hurry."

"No it won't," said a fourth. "The Military Police will have rockets with double motors."

The Army, of course, is testing dozens of ideas to make it easier for the doughboy to do his task in battle.

But no old infantryman ever believes anyone will ever make his job comfortable. Throughout history he knows the problem of the doughboy has always been the same.

The picture is always the same—a scattered group of men with a thousand-yard stare in their tired eyes stumbling up a forbidding hill to root out a dug-in enemy.

So it was on Normandy 14 years ago today—behind the beach stood the first of a thousand hills. And so the oldtimers believe, if at all, only in the infantry as long as there are wars.

Senate Okays $3.7 Billion Foreign Aid

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has approved a $3,729,000,000 foreign aid program after beating back efforts to trim the total and to ban any further assistance to Communist Poland and Yugoslavia.

The big measure authorizing continued military and economic help to free nations was passed by the Senate 51-17 at the end of a session that lasted until nearly midnight. On final passage, 20 Republicans and 25 Democrats voted for the bill while 8 Republicans and 3 Democrats opposed it.

The Senate approved the total recommended by its Foreign Relations Committee, that had cut President Eisenhower's request by 220 million dollars. The House version, passed earlier, is 110 million dollars smaller than the Senate total.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference to reconcile differences.

The aid program faces its next big test when the appropriations committee begins drafting the bill to provide the actual funds. The authorization bill passed Friday night sets ceilings for the program in the fiscal year starting July 1. Most foreign aid supporters concede the appropriations committee will cut the total below the authorization figure.

The W.M.A. of Shover Springs met at the Church Tuesday for their weekly Bible Study. The program subject, "What is a Christian?" This is a question being asked by a good many people today, because too many so-called Christians are entangled with the pleasures of this world and are being stumbling blocks to the unbelievers.

In James 1:27 we are told to keep ourselves unspotted from the world, and don't hide your spiritual light with worldly pleasures.

Those taking part on the program were: Mesdames Robert Garrett, Majorie Keith, Ed Evans, Herbert Byers and Mrs. Reeves.

The meeting was opened by singing "Take time to be holy". Mrs. Ed Evans, the president, voiced the opening prayer and presided over the business session. Besides the mission project, the women are working on a building project for more Sunday School rooms. The group voted to send $100.00 to the National project building fund in the Cape Verde Islands.

The meeting was dismissed by singing "Oh for a closer walk with God" and a prayer by Mrs. Sam England.

Pennsylvania Turnpike Okay Financially

By BOB HOLTON
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Pennsylvania Turnpike officials feel they are at last on safe financial ground — free from the quagmire of scandal which a year ago threatened to swallow up the 440-million-dollar toll road operation.

Commissioners of the 471-mile superhighway said today bondholders have almost forgotten the 1935 million-dollar conspiracy which Gov. George M. Leader described as "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

Thursday five men — two of them former turnpike commissioners and another a top turnpike employee — were sentenced to jail terms ranging from 10 months to five years for their part in the conspiracy. All are free pending appeals to the State Superior Court.

Three years ago national publications and trade magazines were telling the story of a 40-year-old Reading, Pa., engineer Charles W. Stickler Jr.

He boasted that his Mann-Mine Research and Development Co. had parlayed a $4,500 initial stock investment into a multimillion-dollar enterprise in a few years.

Stickler's uncle Thomas J. Evans then was chairman of the Turnpike Commission. Mann-Mine had a big contract to fill abandoned mines under the roadbed of the turnpike extension being built into northeastern Pennsylvania, near Scranton.

State officials received an anonymous letter. Its author identified himself only as a truck driver and told how he had been instructed to dump material ostensibly intended for the mine-filling project.

State investigators probed deep into the Mann-Mine contract. They said they found:

That the mine-filling project was "made work" and the contract was awarded without bids.

That what filling was needed could have been done for less than $50,000 instead of the 192 million dollars provided in the contract.

DOROTHY DIX

It's Hard to Tell Truth
But Deception is Harder

Dear Dorothy Dix: Ten years ago a very fine young man and I fell in love. We were from families whose standards of morality were very high, and in all respects we were well suited. My family did not want me to marry anyone, so sent me away to school, and while there I discovered that the standards of all boys and girls were not like those I had learned. A fellow student began showing me particular attention, making love to me ardently, and soon I was doing things I would not do under any circumstances at home. We were engaged to be married, but I did not tell him that I loved and was engaged to a fine young man back home. This affair lasted two or more years, my first love knowing nothing about it, for I could not bring myself to tell him, or write it, although we wrote each other regularly.

Then while at home on vacation I realized I was in love with my first sweetheart, and no other. We decided to get married the next week, but I had never told him about my college sweetheart. A few months after our marriage he accidentally learned of my deception and he was heartbroken, but I did not confess anything other than having a boy friend just for pastime and becoming engaged to him, which meant nothing at all.

My husband says he could forgive anything better than deliberate deception and falsehood, so I am asking your advice. Should I confess everything and risk the consequences, or go on living with this cold wall, or barrier, of distrust existing between us? He still loves me, but because he cannot have the full trust and confidence in me that he had in our courtship days, his life is miserable. Please advise me. LOUISE

Dear Louise: Better eliminate the distrust by confessing everything. Things will never be the same between you again, but at least the deception will be over.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 40 years old, married to a man 74. We got along swell until he retired. Now he drives me crazy. He's around the house all the time, gets in my way when I'm housecleaning and won't even let me entertain my lady friends in private. Should I live on with him or leave him?

Dear Bluelbell: This is one of the hazards of marrying a man much older than yourself. Retirement always takes a certain amount of adjustment. Be patient.

Dear Dorothy Dix: During her senior year my daughter dated a classmate who, we thought, was a very nice boy. They began to quarrel quite a bit, and finally, in disgust, she broke off with him. Now he's turned out to be a sorry mess always getting into trouble. Will the fact that they were once good friends hurt my daughter's reputation?

Dear Camden: I don't see why it should. Your girl had the sense to recognize a bad actor and deserves credit for breaking up with him. Most people have probably forgotten that they ever dated.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I were divorced a year ago and he hasn't contributed a cent to the kids' support since. He has remarried, but writes me that some day he'd like us to be together again. I love him in spite of everything. L. R.

Dear L. R.: And boy how your ex-husband is playing up to you!

Clayton A. Landside, former general manager and vice president of Mann-Mine, appeared in Dauphin County Court for their sentencing. Stickler received the stiffest sentence, two years for conspiracy and five years for false pretenses to run concurrently. Evans was sentenced to an aggregate of three to four years for conspiracy and misconduct in office. McNeill received the lightest sentence, 10 to 20 months for conspiracy. Torrance received two to four years and Landside 22 to 47 months.

Red Satellites May Revolt, Dulles Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the State Department never took a position for or against an amendment to the foreign aid bill Eisenhower means to give President Eisenhower more leeway in help for satellite nations.

Under questioning by Sen. John H. Sparkman (D-Ala.), Dulles said the department favors the idea, which the Senate turned down in the amendment form Thursday night.

But, Dulles said, it felt that the decision whether to attach it to the $3,712,800,000 foreign aid bill, or seek separate action, was up to Congress.

Dulles also said the Soviet Union faces a choice of giving its satellites more freedom or resorting to oppressions that increase the likelihood of revolt.

He testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee while a majority of the group was still smarting at the 49-42 defeat Thursday night of its proposal to encourage Eastern European nations to loosen Moscow's control.

That plan, which the committee wrote into the foreign aid authorization bill in an amendment by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), would have permitted President Eisenhower to use aid money in satellite countries if he determined it would help or encourage them to take a course independent of Moscow.

Dulles' testimony bore at least indirectly on that idea.

The administration backs the principle, but Eisenhower came out Wednesday for handlings it in separate legislation rather than the foreign aid bill.

"The Soviet rulers must either grant more independence, and thus liberate forces which oppose the existing regimes, or else they must revert to the Stalinist tactics of oppression with increased likelihood of violent revolt," Dulles said.

He said the Soviet vacillating policy illustrates the dilemma.

He said communism in 1955 agreed to Yugoslav independence, but it had such disturbing repercussions elsewhere in Europe that it again reversed itself and seeks, by threatened economic pressures, again to subject Yugoslavia to Moscow's rule.

Dulles said, "we have been encouraged" by some of Russia's recent foreign policy moves, and he expressed the belief that Soviet Union and the Western recent foreign policy moves, and he expressed the belief that significant agreements between the Soviet Union and the Western Powers are possible.

He described as encouraging Soviet agreement to join in scientific studies of policing an atomic test suspension and also Soviet acceptance of the U.S. proposal to confer on neutralizing the antarctic.

Before Dulles' appearance before the committee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Min.) had attributed the rejection of Kennedy's amendment to a State Department "double-cross."

Humphrey contended the State Department helped wrote the satellite aid plan as a foreign aid amendment, and then backed down.

Dulles said that is only one of several insoluble problems faced by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the rest of the Kremlin leadership.

He listed the problems as:

1. Education—The Soviet government has increased education particularly in science but minds which can find the ways to penetrate outer space can also penetrate the fallacies of Marxism.

2. Economic—The Soviet people are demanding more consumer goods, and the Soviet rulers will have to do more for the welfare of their own people.

3. Personal Security—Stalinist police brutality has been put aside, and in the more relaxed atmosphere individualism tends to grow.

4. Satellites—Poland and Hungary have shown that nationalism and individualism are not extinguished even by massive and sustained pressures. Soviet leadership will have to grant more independence to the satellites, or increase police oppression, and thereby the chance of revolt.

5. Refugees—Millions of people have fled from Communist rule areas to free countries and their flight shows that there is something basically repellent in the Communist rule.

6. Foreign Policy—Since brute force no longer brings results in view of free world defenses, Soviet rulers have switched to more friendly policies and developed a vested interest in respectability.

"That is a trend," Dulles said, "which we welcome and encourage."

"The United States does not exclude the possibility of achieving significant agreements with the Soviet Union in certain areas of mutual interest. Within the past five years we have made several agreements with the Communists, notably the agreement that ended the Korean hostilities and the agreement that liberated Austria."

But Dulles added that the cold war cannot be ended by a formula of words so long as the basic creed of international communism requires world rule.

Boy Friend Quitting, Girl Shoots Him

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Prosecutor Marvin Ferguson said yesterday former Arkansas resident Betty Johnson 19, shot her boy friend because he was leaving her.

Miss Johnson, formerly of Russellville, Ark., is in Kern County Jail here, charged with fatally shooting Harold Kenneth Horn, 25, also of Russellville.

The shooting took place June 1 at a drive-in restaurant near Woodlawn. Witness said Horn was at the drive-in with another girl when Miss Johnson drove up. They said she called him to her car and when he sat beside her she shot him twice with a .25 caliber revolver.

Ferguson said Miss Johnson and Horn had been sweethearts in Russellville and had been traveling together while working as farm laborers.

Preliminary hearing for Miss Johnson is set June 18.

Believes Chances of GOP Look Better

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mondo Alcorn, GOP national chairman, said today Republican chances of capturing Senate control in the November elections look better than they did a few weeks ago.

"But it still is a tough proposition," Alcorn told newsmen.

Alcorn astounded reporters last April by saying it appeared it was just not in the cards for his party to win a majority of the Senate seats. It was amazing because any professional politician's normal stance is to claim everything in sight.

Farm Prices Up 1.9% in State

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The index of prices received by Arkansas farmers advanced 1.9 per cent from mid-April to mid-May, the federal-state Crop Reporting Service said today.

The national index was unchanged from April.

The crop reporting service here said meat animals, up 5.8 per cent, led the Arkansas advance. Cotton was up 3.4 per cent, poultry and eggs up 2.8 per cent and feed grains and hay up .7 per cent.

Declines were reported for dairy products and oil-bearing crops while food grains were unchanged.

News Briefs

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)—A census that city officials hope will count more than 10,000 people started here yesterday. The City Council requested the special count in an effort to make Forrest City eligible for about $10,000 in additional turnback funds.

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A dog leashing law may be passed here because of an increase in animal life cases, City Commissioner Charles Mankin said yesterday. He said 40 persons had been bitten by dogs in the first six months of the year and that half the cases occurred last month.

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Two Arkansians are scheduled to attend the second annual Summer Institute for Science and Mathematics Teachers, which opened here today. They are Mrs. John H. Flinn Jr. of Lake Village and Robert Trunk of Crossett. The institute continues for 11 weeks.

The growth of Little Rock as a commercial center began after 1836, with a small hat manufacturing plant opened in 1840 and two Germans beginning the manufacture of beer and ale about the same time.

CHAPTER 29

I phoned Juana from a pay phone down in the lobby. "How are you honey?" I said when she answered.

"I missed you last night," she said.

"I missed you, too, honey, but I couldn't be helped. I'll see you tonight, but I'll be a little late. I have to do something first. I'll probably reach your place about 10."

CHAPTER 30

"Oh, no," I said. "Not again in the same night. Well, go ahead. I started to lift my arms."

"No, no," he said. "I do not wish to scorch you. My only word for you now is that you should be more careful with whom you associate. Our companion is part of a group which is the enemy of the state. Her father is already in prison."

"Thanks for the warning," I said. "Now, I have to get her home before she's exposed to worse influences."

"You do not understand," he said. "Señorita Sanjurjo is being arrested."

Carniero took her by the arm and led her to the police car parked at the curb. He helped her climb into the rear seat of the car and climbed in after her. He closed the door and looked through the window to make sure that I was watching. Then he lifted one hand and deliberately smashed her across the mouth.

I had already taken two steps toward the car before I realized that this was the one thing I must not do. It was exactly what Carniero wanted and it wouldn't help either one of us. I stopped and shoved my hands in my pockets so he wouldn't see the clenched fists. He grinned wolfishly at me through the window, then the police car drove away.

I stood there long enough to get better control of myself, then finally hailed a taxi. I had the driver take me back to the hotel and wait. I went upstairs and took the hoister and gun from beneath my shirt and backed it around my chest. I went back down to the cab and gave the driver Juana's address.

It was a few minutes past 10 when the cab stopped in front of her apartment house. I paid off the driver and went up. I knocked on the door.

"Come in," she called.

She was standing in front of a full-length mirror admiring herself. She looked up and smiled at me. "You are late," she said.

"How much did Carniero pay you for telling him I was going to be carrying a gun when I left the hotel today? The gun he couldn't find. This one," I slipped the gun from my holster and held it loosely in my hand.

"Mer eyes got big as she looked at it."

"I do not work for him."

"Oh, no? You were the only person I told that I was going out on something and that I would be carrying a gun. And I didn't make the call from my room; I'm sure they listen in on that phone. Carniero was waiting for me. He knew what he expected to find and was surprised when he didn't find it. You were the only one who could have sent him on that little errand."

I reached for her and she started to spin away. I tried to grab her shoulder, but instead I got a handful of dress. There was a rippling sound and the dress came away in my hand. She was left in just a wisp of silk around her middle.

All the fight seemed to go out of her. "I am sorry, Mijo," she said faintly. "I really liked being with you. I didn't want to report you. UT Carniero made me do it. And he has never paid me anything."

"No? For what, then?"

"My father is in Santa Monica. It is only because of the work I have done for Carniero that he has stayed alive. If I refused they would kill him."

"You're a bigger fool than I said you were if you let him pay you to do it for money," I said. "You haven't really kept your father alive. The minute you're no longer useful, they'll kill him. And probably you, too. And that minute is practically on top of you. You can't even have to tell the underground about your father's whereabouts. You'd better start picking a safe place to land."

As I reached the street, a car stopped to a stop in front of the building. The door opened and Carniero got out. He was alone. I went for a gun in his hand.

"Senor," he said, "what a pleasure to run into you again. Please get your hands above your head. I think I will try searching you again."

I'd been foolish just because I wanted to tell Juana off. I hadn't stopped to think since Juana was spying for the police, they probably had her apartment bugged. Carniero had known I was going there, so he'd alerted the man who listened, who in turn probably had reached him by radio.

I raised my hands.

"He stopped around behind me holding his gun against the left arm. He grinned with satisfaction and reached in to shake my gun from its holster."

"This is most serious, senor," he said.

"I'll bet it is," I said. "Especially if it's somebody you want to get. But even with that as an excuse, I don't think they'll like it if you kill me."

"No just let me have a private talk with you and then we

OUTDOORS

with John Alden Knight

In July, quite some few years ago, my son and I were bass fishing in one of our favorite pools of the Troughs River, about 12 miles from Birmingham, N. Y.

The bass were singularly unresponsive although the weather was fair and the barometer steady.

The Bridge Pool had never failed us prior to that time. Always I produced bass; good, husky bass that gave an exultant account of themselves against the light fly-rod tackle. But this day was the exception; not a single bass responded to our best efforts.

Less than 24 hours later a flash flood struck that valley, causing widespread property damage and considerable injury and death. There had been no warning. The people who lived in the valley were completely unprepared, and the fish knew about it and were ready for emergencies, well in advance.

The same sort of thing happened a few years later here in central Pennsylvania. A friend and I were fishing State Run, a small stream about 50 miles from my home in Williamsport. The day was clear and bright, there was a good hatch of insects drifting, yet not a single trout showed itself.

Two days later the storm struck the area, causing a record flood. Once again the fish gave us warning, well ahead of the Weather Bureau.

Methods best known to themselves, fish seem to understand storms better than we do. This is particularly true of thunderstorms, those summer downpours that freshen up the streams and keep things green. The behavior of fish before, during and after these atmospheric disturbances is an interesting thing to watch.

All fishermen know that it is believed by most country people that the time to go fishing is on a rainy day. This belief, of course, has to do with bait fishing. Like most rules of fishing, this one has its profound exceptions. Some will see what is to happen. Up stairs, senor."

Leaders Usually Wind Up Lost

DALLAS (AP)—In 24 golf tournaments this year only one player of 44 who led or tied for the lead in the first round came through with the championship.

Thus Jimmy John McMullen, the hungry-looking fellow from Fair Oaks, Calif., who has won much less than expenses on the tour, faces some odds as he sets out today ahead of the pack in the $23,000 Dallas Open.

McMullen, 23, who lives at Alameda, Calif., and whose wife is expecting at Palo Alto, laid down a 6-under-par 64 Thursday to take the first-round lead. It gave him a 2-stroke buffer over five shot-makers—Tony Lema, Napa, Calif.; Doug Sanders, Miami, Fla.; and Gary Player, Johannesburg, South Africa.

At 67 were two of the pre-tournament favorites, Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the defending champion, and Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex. Mike Souchak, Grossinger's, N. Y., and Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C., also had 67s while another of the big favorites, Ken Venturi, San Francisco, wound up with a 68.

Moscow Raps U.S. Nuclear Tests

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio reported today that a battalion of Soviet scientists had to abandon their observations in the Pacific because of dangerous radioactive rain. It implied the "hot" rain came from U. S. nuclear weapon tests.

In an English-language propaganda broadcast, the Communists said the Soviet ship Vitaly was doused by radioactive rain "over 1,800 miles west of the Marshall Islands where the United States has been testing atomic bombs."

The U. S. nuclear test series began April 28 at Eniwetok, in the Marshall Islands.

Moscow radio said the Soviets increased radioactivity was first noticed in rain May 23.

Committee Okays 88 Air Projects

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee today tentatively approved of 88 air force projects to cost $261,560,000. Two in Arkansas were included.

Additionally, it approved an undisclosed number of classified projects dealing with the aircraft control and warning system to cost $163,060,000.

All of the items are included in a $1,684,361,000 military public works authorization bill for the year beginning July 1. Appropriation of funds is subject to later action by Congress.

The Arkansas allotments are $3,463,000 for the Little Rock Air Force Base and $1,654,000 for the Blytheville Air Force Base.

TV's Bachelor Father Happy Survivor

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bachelor Father is a happy survivor of the package from one of the biggest cash turnovers in TV history. It had to have been there as a casualty among TV shows. Bachelor Father, which alternates with Jack Benny on CBS day nights, is one of the few shows to be renewed for next season.
The star, John Forsythe, offered explanation: "I think we've been pretty lucky in drawing a line on a family show. We don't act as far in comedy as 'I Love Lucy' and we're not as sentimental as 'Father Knows Best' or 'The Danny Thomas Show'.
"And I think we've got a good cast. Sammie Tamm is a great character; he's not an actor, but he has a way of making any line seem funny. The girl, Mary McCormack, was a good choice because she's natural and not precocious. As for myself, there's one quality I've seemed to retain throughout my career. People seem to be able to identify themselves with me. That's an asset for a TV show."
Forsythe, handsome veteran of stage ("Teahouse of the August Moon") and screen ("The Ambassador's Daughter"), keeps a close eye on production, down to and including the laugh track.
Many a comedy show has been ruined by boisterous laughter on the sound track when the humor seems mild to the home audience. Bachelor Father gets its laughter from packs of tourists who bus through the Republic lot daily. They view the half-hour comedy and react accordingly.
"But then we edit the laughs to build them up or tone them down," Forsythe explained. "Most of the time, I make the laughs smaller."

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

BRETHREN BE NOT WEARY IN WELL DOING—2 Timothy 3:13

A robust man you are today,—Full of vigor, vitality and vim;
But through some common stroke of fate,—You must depend only on Him. Yes, when your stretcher rolls into the room,
The physicians will do their best; Their skills and tools will work in rhyme,—But remember Brother,
It Takes God Every Time.

God's assistants are brothers of well doing but they would be the first to join the Psalmist of old that It Takes God Every Time.
You may find Him at the little church on the corner...
Have you Tried?

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today desire that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
